

DIGITAL LITERACY TRAINING

Best Buy's Geek Squad Academy

Geek Squad Academy from Best Buy provides teens hands-on learning opportunities where they can develop tech skills that will inspire future education and career choices. To accomplish this, Geek Squad Academy partners with public housing agencies, local non-profits, and other organizations to expose students ages 10-18 to the latest technology in a fun, interactive setting.

With local Geek Squad Agents and Best Buy Blue Shirts hosting classes such as Robotics and Circuitry, Coding, Film Production, Photography, 3D Design, Digital Music, and more, teens build friendships and self-confidence, spark their inner creativity and innovation, and discover how technology can benefit them in school now and in their work lives later.

Two-day Geek Squad Academy camp events are held May-September, while workshops and nontraditional programming are offered year round.

Commitment

- Conduct free tech workshops and afterschool programs for teens in HUD-assisted housing in ConnectHome communities, in collaboration with a public housing agency or nonprofit,
- Lead free digital literacy training for families and teens in ConnectHome communities.

How to Get Started

1. Visit academy.geeksquad.com for more information.
2. Submit an application online that includes information about your facility, desired dates, and the projected number of students and volunteers.
3. Once your event is approved, work with the Geek Squad Academy to organize the event or workshop for your residents.

For inquiries, email: academy@geeksquad.com.